VO-AG STUDENT CONSTRUCTS POST HOLE DIGGER

Picture above is Eugene Conner, sophomore student in vocational agriculture at Apomattox High School, with a tractor post hole digger he constructed as part of his shop program. It is about the sophomore year when vo-ag students begin to realize the tremendous possibilities that exist for them in the shop or farm mechanics part of their program.

The shop phase of the vocational program really begins in the eighth grade with a course which teaches the students to identify and properly use the various hand tools. In the freshman year this training is expanded to a more thorough use of the hand tools and to include the use of power tools such as the table saw, band saw, drill press, and grinders. Before the end of the first year of high school some students begin to make or repair different items.

Sophomores get still more training in the use of power tools and in welding and soon find that they can do a lot of their farm repair work, as well as to construct many useful items. Some of the equipment which the vo-ag students build includes farm trailers, self feeders, feed carts, post peelers, grinders, hay lifts and post hole diggers.

The training of the vocational agriculture student continues both in school and out as he uses his equipment or knowledge on the farm to get his work done and problems solved. His instructor visits him on the farm from time to time to check on progress being made on his enterprises as well as to help with any problems which have arisen.

SHRUBS SUFFER FROM CLIMATIC CONDITIONS

Virginia home owners are having trouble with damage to ornamental shrubbery.

S. B. Fenne, plant pathologist at VPI, says many specimens of damaged boxwood are still being received in his laboratories. In almost all cases the damage has been caused by unfavorable growing conditions, and disease or insect injury is not present.

Since the past several summers have been unusually dry and the past winter was dry in the early part with many alternating warm and cold days, conditions have been quite unfavorable for many shrubs. The result is a general decline and often severe injury.

There are several other factors that can contribute to poor growing conditions, Fenne says. If the tree or shrub is in a poor location —too close to the street or highway, too close to buildings, or too much in competition with other trees and shrubs—you can expect trouble. If the soil is too dry or too wet and not well drained, or if it receives drainage water from an asphalt roof, the shrubs may not thrive.

Often shrubs fail to become well established after transplanting. And sometimes they only need fertilization.

Paprika - The Pay-off Spice

Dress it up and it will sell

Homemaker philosophy? Well, this is standard advice than can be applied to anything from a department store item to a real estate development. And Mrs. Housewife is now becoming aware that her efforts in the kitchen are appreciated a hundred-fold when she adds the touch of attraction to the dishes she has spent valuable time preparing.

In plain language, she now knows that a couple of seconds taken to add a few dashes of Paprika to any number of dishes pays off in compliments galore at the dinner table.

And Paprika is just the spice to do it. Quick and easy, the dash of Paprika adds the flare, the freshness and the festive look to those foods which your family may have accepted as commonplace before. For a few examples: salads, cole slaw, cheese dishes, creamed foods, eggs, fish, stews, chicken and baked, mashed or home - fried potatoes.

Salads, the warm weather standby, are ideal for Paprika. Sprinkle it over the salad after the mayonnaise or dressing has been added. You can even dust it on the lettuce edges for a really gay effect.

Cheeses, another class of summer favorites, take on- an extra flavor appeal dashed with Paprika. A newer combination, Paprika dusted on corn-on-the-cob, is fast becoming customary these summers. For fried chicken, add it before frying and sprinkle on again just before serving.

Although dressing up almost any dish is Paprika's main job, its gentle, mild, rather sweet flavor also helps the taste buds. And you may be surprised to know that Paprika actually provides more Vitamin C than the citrus fruits.

So start dashing the Paprika and get those pay-off compliments from your family for the special flare your formerly commonplace dishes will begin to take on.

FARMERS TO EUROPE

Washington.- Believing that exchange visits between farmers of this country and Soviet Russia would create a great deal of good will between the nations, 100 American farmers plan to fly to Russia this fall, attending trade fairs, if Congress will provide a way to get their small planes over there. A bill has been introduced in Congress which would authorize the Military Sea Transportation Service to carry the farmers and about 30 single-engine aircraft across the Atlantic by ship.

FORD sets 500-mile record at Indianapolis Speedway

Again proves nobody outperforms Ford

... dramatic demonstration of the kind of performance and roadability that makes all your driving more fun in a Ford!

Ford's record was timed and certified by the United States Auto Club

A Ford V-8 hurtled across the brick and asphalt surface of tough and testing Indianapolis Speedway . . . whirling through the tight turns and flashing over the straight stretches . . . to set a mark that no stock car ever reached before!

"Previous fo Ford's record run, no other stock car had gone even one lap at Indianapolis at 100 m.p.h., but one of Ford's laps was timed at the electrifying speed of 113.7 m.p.h.! And Ford averaged over 107 m.p.h. for the full five hundred miles . . . close to the average set by the extremely costly, specially-built racer which won the Memorial Day "500"!

Ford fully realizes that the welter of claims and counter claims about "racing victories" (many of them completely contradictory) must be confusing and disillusioning to the public. Ford ran this race against time, over the true "Classic" distance and at the most famous track in America, in order to dispel this cloud of doubt and disbelief and prove that no one outperforms Ford!

Peter de Paolo, leader of the team of drivers that piloted the winning Ford, states flatly: "No other stock car could have equalled this performance!" And Pete de Paolo should know, for he was the first driver to win the "500" Classic with a better than 100 m.p.h. average. And now he comes back with a group of drivers to establish a stock car record with the great '56 Ford!

Ford wrote this new mark large and bold in the record books. And the whole Ford did the trick. From the hood-full of throbbing horsepower to the road-hugging rear end, Ford demonstrated that it has what it takes to make your driving more enjoyable. Convince yourself that driving a Ford can be real fun. Test drive a '56 Ford. There's a set of keys waiting for you, so come in and see us soon.
